SPIRIT'S HOUSE.
From naked stones of agony
I will build a house for me;
As a mansion all alone
I will raise it, stone by stone
And every stone where I have bled Will show a sign of dusky red.
I have not gone the way in vain,
For I have good of all my pain; My spirit's quiet house will be Built of naked stones I trod On roads where I lost sight of God.
Sara Teasdale.

Friendship is probably the basis of a great deal of the happiness we find in this world. In a little book called "Adventure in Friendship" David Grayson, in defining friendship, says, in part:

Friendship, it seems to me, is like happiness. She flows pursuit, she is shy, and wild, and timid, and will be the best wooed by indirection. Quite unexpectedly, sometimes, as we pass into the open road, she puts her hand into ours like a child. Friendship is neither a formality nor a mode; it is rather a life.

It is not the substance of what we say to one another that makes us friends, nor yet the manner of saying it, nor is it what you do or I do, nor is it what I give you or you give me, nor is it because we chance to belong to the same church, a society or party that makes us friendly. No, it is because we entertain the same views, nor respond to the same emotions. All these things may serve to bring us nearer together, but no one of them can of itself kindle the divine fire of friendship. A friend is one with whom we are fond of being when no business is afoot nor any entertainment contemplated. A man may well be silent with a friend. "I do not need to ask the wounded person how he feels," says the poet. "I myself become the wounded person."

It is not short of miraculous how,

To the motorist who has quit guessing about tires —

A LONG about this time of year a man finds his motor- ing neighbors getting anxious about their tires. With folks expecting old tires to "pop" any minute, there comes the question of what kind of new ones to buy. U. S. Tires are answering a lot of questions like this nowadays.

The U. S. Tire following embraces two kinds of tire buyers.

Those who started with quality first, and have never bought anything else but the quality standard tire.

Those who came to quality first only after dabbling with "bargains," "rebates," "job lot" and "surplus stock" tires.

Getting one hundred cents value on the dollar in tire buying is a straight-forward business proposition—not guess-work or a game of wits.

The most essential man for you to know today is the local U. S. Tire dealer who is concentrating on a full, completely sized line of U. S. Tires.

He gets his U. S. Tires straight from his neighboring U. S. Tire Factory Branch—one of 92 such Branches established and maintained all over the country by the U. S. Tire makers.

He is the man who can give you fresh, live tires—not stuff shipped to him from some point where it did not sell, but new tires of current production.

Giving the same quality, selection and price-advantage to the owner of the medium weight car as the big car owner gets. With equal service and buying opportunity whether he lives in the smaller localities or the greater centers of population.

THE U. S. NOBBY TREAD

Where the going is especially heavy with snow, mud or sand, in hilly country where maximum traction on the road is a factor, no other tire has yet devised is quite so effective, or so wholly approved by motoring opinion, as the U. S. Nobby Tread.

Its very simplicity—two diagonal rows of oblong studs, interlocking in their grip on the road—is the result of all the years of U. S. Rubber experience with every type of road the world over.

"The most essential man for you to know today in the tire business is your local U. S. Tire Dealer."

with cultivation, one's capacity for of luxuriance friendship increases. Once I myself had scarcely room in my heart for a single friend, who am now so wealthy in friendships. It is phenomenon worthy of consideration by all hardened disbelievers in that which is miraculous upon this earth that when a man's heart really opens to a friend he finds there room for two. And when he takes in the second, behold the skies life and the earth grows wider, and he finds there room for two more.

In a curious passage (which I understand no longer darkly) old mystical Swedenborg tells of his wonder-ment that the world of spirits (which he says he visited so familiarly) should not soon become too small for all the swelling hosts of its ethereal inhabitants, and was confronted with the discovery that the more angels there were the more heaven to hold them. So let it be with our friendship!

Let us analyze this wretched habit of whining. Now if it is real trouble there might be a tiny excuse for it although even then it does more harm than good—spoils dispositions—makes wrinkles and fretful faces. And anyway why whine about it? When the trouble is past you will not like to remember that you whined when you saw it coming. You will much prefer to remember that you faced it with high courage.

However, our experience has been that the people who have real trouble are, as a rule, too much occupied getting themselves out of it to whine.
So most of this whining must come from the people who have only fancied trouble and for this there is surely no excuse. Most of the trouble in the world is the kind that exists only in the man's mind and we all get in our little whine about what is going to happen sometime and only about one per cent of the things we whine over ever really happen.

We see in this world chiefly what we look for. A farmer going along examines the farms, an architect the buildings, a merchant the condition of the markets, a minister the churches.
He who is constantly looking for troubles will find them stretching off into gloomy wilderness. He who is watching for blessings will find them nearer and thicker extending in harvest
